are Japanese people religious and if so in what ways David Lewis addresses this question from the perspective of ordinary Japanese people in the context of their life cycles and explores why they engage in religious activities he not only discusses how Japanese people engage in different religious practices as they encounter new events in their lives but also analyses the attitudes and motivations behind their behaviour activities such as fortune telling religious rites in the workplace ancestral rites and visits to shrines and temples are actually engaged in by many people who view themselves as non religious but express their motivations in terms other than the conventional religious ones this book outlines the religious options available and assesses why people choose particular religious activities at various times in their lives or in specific circumstances the author challenges some widespread assumptions about religion in urban and industrial contexts and also shows how some of the underlying motivations behind japanese behaviour are expressed both in religious and non religious forms
